Dear Quincy,

Our Jr. High students really enjoyed your presentation and your message when you visited. You have mastered delivering a high energy presentation while combining a subtle message that kids can really listen to. Your message was not “canned” or force-fed. It flowed very well with your actions and spoke clearly about believing in yourself, following your passions and letting those traits help to build self-confidence.

Our students love basketball so naturally they enjoyed your presentation. I feel they also enjoyed it because it really wasn't about basketball. Basketball was just the medium to deliver the message and get them engaged enough to really hear what you were talking to them about.

Thanks for coming and sharing with our students. It was a very entertaining presentation but more importantly, it was an excellent message.
